A Rundown on Couples

For Violin and Piano

Max Charles Davies

A Rundown on Couples

For Violin and Piano

Duration: c. 10 minutes

First performed by Nicole Hawker (violin) and Kate Halsall (piano), 24th May 2007,
Trinity College of Music, London

Two people meet, and start to enjoy a jovial chat. Out of nowhere, one explodes into an angry, bitter, venomous rant, completely alienating the other. After a failed attempt at reconciliation, a spectacular sequence of duels, 'wind-ups' and attempts to outwit the other follows - with an unexpected conclusion…

Wild with Blue

For Alto Saxophone and Piano

Max Charles Davies

Wild with Blue

For Alto Saxophone and Piano

Score in C

Duration: c. 11 minutes

This piece was commissioned by spnm for the 2008 Cheltenham Festival.
The first performance of this work was given on Friday 18th July at St Mary's Church, Painswick, by Amy Dickson (Alto Saxophone) and Martin Cousin (Piano)

Wild with Blue is intended as a mini-drama for Alto Saxophone and Piano, although it does not have a programmatic narrative as such. The two instruments represent two characters, and they argue furiously, dance, converse, reflect on what's been and attempt to reconcile their differences. As the title suggests, there are two musical forces at play – one being wild, energetic, provocative and volatile, and the other blue, lazy, languid, and a little more forgiving…

First performed by Charlotte Ellett and David Seaman of Music Theatre Wales,
9th November 2008, Royal Welsh College of Music and Drama, Cardiff

This piece was written for the 2008 Music Theatre Wales Make an Aria project in collaboration with DH Frost. The piece is intended more as a stand-alone scena rather than an aria. It is a multi-layered drama where music and text are completely interdependent in their combined efforts to capture just one of many identical love stories of our protagonist: a woman in search of the perfect love; her life's cyclically repetitive journey constantly testing her definition of love when experiencing the highs of physical passion and the lows of deceit. All this is set against the backdrop of a perfect childhood memory of the kind of innocent love that she is striving to recapture…

Text:

Just a moment… Let me take a moment… I'll join you in a moment…

The stars will not go out.
The sun will not go down.
The end will never come.
You are my home,
You say.

The first time I heard those words
Was long ago.

Last loves
Are what matter, not
First loves, you say.

Are we in love?

What you want,
Winning me;
What I want,
Winning you.
Look! It is here.

Is there no end
To our deceit?
Are you me?
Or I you?
It is complete.

The stars will not go out.
The sun will not go down.
The end will never come.

You are my home,
You say.

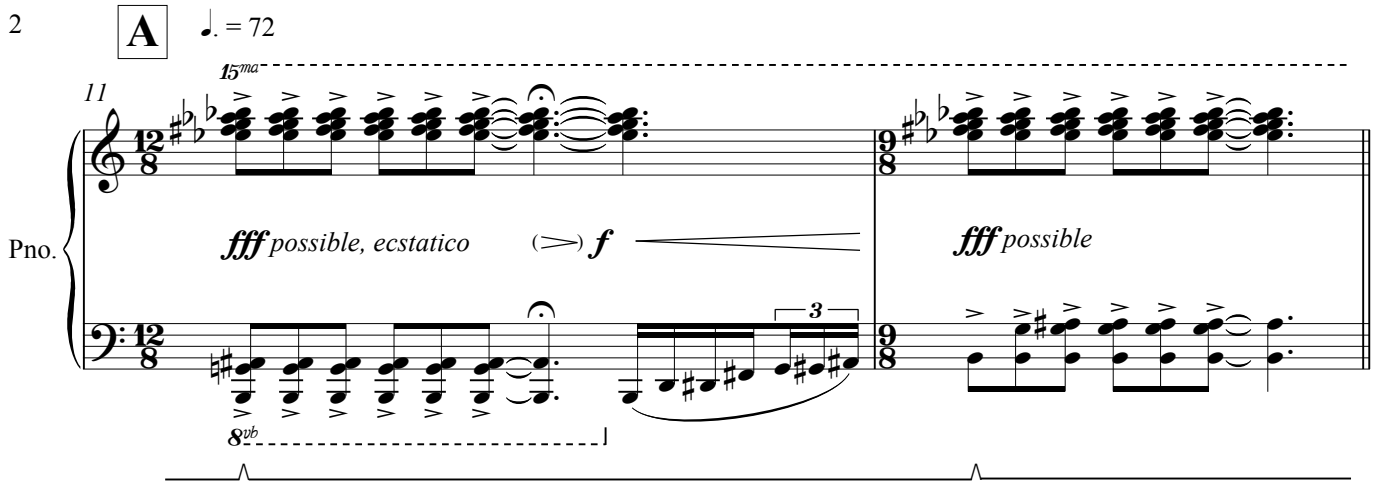

Are we in love?

Drama for Solo Soprano

Text by the Composer (a six-word story):

Arrive. Music! Discourse… Impart wisdom. Depart.

It is an obvious choice for composers to write pieces of music as gifts, and when the spotlight falls on composers of considerable repute, the creation of collections of small musical offerings is encouraged and organised.

The reason 3 Years exists is because of such a project. A collection of works by composers at Cardiff University was to be presented as a farewell gift to Distinguished Visiting Professor Judith Weir when her three year tenure had come to an end. The brief was to write a very short piece; no more than one page in length. I failed to adhere to this brief, as the piece wouldn't allow me to do so.

As it was for Judith, I wanted it in some way to directly reflect her influence on me, which was to encourage, develop and cement a sense of theatre in my work. I decided to nod in the direction of her King Harald's Saga and write a theatrical piece for solo soprano.

Within both the music and the libretto of just six words, I've attempted to present a metaphor for life, although the initial inspiration was depicting three years at a university.

In the prologue, I attempt to capture a sense of excitement when arriving at a new place of study. The first scene is a representation of the disparity between the excited fondness of hypothesising and talking about music-making, and the seemingly overwhelming resistance to the notion of actually making music amongst the certain postgraduate students. The second scene is a gentle depiction of a tutorial, which are always enriching and enlightening experiences. The epilogue begins as a triumphant exit, but soon switches in mood, and the work ends with the soprano depicting a heart monitor during the final moments of life.

To Judith Weir, with thanks

Text adapted from a six-word story by CkcC found on the internet at:

http://www.sixwordstories.net/2009/03/condom-broken-oblivious-happy-father%E2%80%99s-day/

Split condom. Oblivious. Happy Father's Day.

When I was asked by James Young to contribute to the Warehouse Ensemble's 'Six-word Opera' project, I immediately began my search for a collection of words that had inherent potential as a libretto for an opera. I wanted to be able to tell a story beyond the surface meaning of the words as they are read as a whole, and for the combination of the music and text to drive a more complex narrative than the original story afforded.

My mechanism of choice was word play.

The backdrop is a couple who have decided to end their relationship, i.e. 'split' up. Using just this word, the opening 'scene' depicts the couple absolutely agreeing to split, but, being amicable, not before having 'break-up sex.' This act is alluded to by increasingly tempestuous and passionate music, which could accompany actions to the effect, although this isn't strictly necessary. At the point of climax, the percussionist, in view of the audience, dramatically tears a piece of thick paper, as a tongue-in-cheek representation of a condom splitting. The man departs, leaving the woman alone.

Evidently the man did not notice that the condom had split before his departure (a little artistic licence is employed here), and the woman makes this discovery. Throughout this 'second scene,' the emotional state of the woman is the subject of the music.

The story then jumps to 'sometime later,' and earlier jovial music is recalled in modified form to capture the feelings of the man, who at this point (again after the employment of a little artistic licence) is playing the part of narrator (for the audience's benefit) as he is telling us that he is 'oblivious.' He is simultaneously playing himself, and also informs us that he is 'happy,' alluding to the fact that splitting up was the best course of action. This is dramatically heightened by his looking at a photo of the woman. 'Happy' is set further in two different ways: the woman pays the man a visit and is building up to the final message – 'Happy Father's Day' – but the man mistakes this for her asking him if he is indeed, happy, to which he tells her that he is in a reassuring way, before the inevitable outcome is revealed by her.

A couple (stood side by side on stage or sat opposite each other) have just come to the end of a chat and they decide that their relationship is over. The split is amicable, but there's a little individual realisation for each that they are now alone. It's not a pleasant feeling.

Commissioned by the Aldworth Philharmonic Orchestra as a result of winning the APO 2009/10 Young Composer's Award

First performed by the Aldworth Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Andrew Taylor, 23rd January 2010, The Concert Hall, Reading Town Hall, Reading.

Being asked to write a concerto for orchestra presented me with an exciting, and somewhat rare opportunity to explore what my music has become over the last five years. It is increasingly centred about the unification of many seemingly disparate musical elements in the context of an autobiographical narrative that is deeply integral to the music.

I shall not go into any of the details of the narrative for you here. I shall simply let you decide what it is for yourself, although, due to my inability to be subtle, I daresay I'll give it away in the coming lines…

At the heart of The Mysterious Kiss is a very simple love song. Incidentally, this was not initially written specifically to be used in this piece. It was the missing link that allowed the structure of the work to form naturally around the narrative. My decision to use it came some way into the composition of the piece, during a period of struggle, despite it being 'the answer always staring me in the face' as it were. The love song's journey through The Mysterious Kiss is one of discovery. It is always trying to get back to its original form, but comes up against some resistance from other mischievous music at play. This material was also suited perfectly to the spotlighted, concerto-like solos and duets that I felt absolutely necessary to include as part of a concerto for orchestra.

In addition to the love song, there are four strands of music that spotlight the different sections and subsections of the orchestra; fanfares for 4 trumpets and percussion, ritualistic drumming and chanting for heavy brass and percussion, wild, celebratory jazz for the woodwind and jazz drum kit and a simple chorale for strings.

The piece opens with these fanfares, ritual drumming and chanting, wild, celebratory jazz and the chorale in cacophony. Gradually, the first three fizzle out, leaving a tiny glimpse of the chorale. This is the most important strand of these four. The other elements then begin to creep back in, and just as it builds towards a reiteration of the cacophony it is brought to a complete halt by the first appearance of the love song (a duet for piccolo and oboe, accompanied by four solo celli). It is warped and eventually obliterated by incessant and ever-increasing stabbing gestures from the orchestra.

What then ensues is a musical journey whereby the four strands are explored by the whole orchestra. The fanfares and chanting are in turn absorbed into the harmonic world of the chorale. The chorale itself experiences a premonition: the accompaniment proper to the pure form of the love song. The last strand to be tamed – the wild, celebratory jazz – is allowed its one moment of mischief before it 'finds' its true place within the accompaniment of the love song.

And so the work resolutely ends, as does the narrative, with every musical element completely unified as part of the whole.

The work is dedicated, with all my love, to my fiancée Ceri…

Max Charles Davies

Brunch

An Opera in One Scene with Prelude
For Two Sopranos, Alto, and Guitarist
(+ Optional Male Actor and Fifteen Optional 'Extras')

Cast:

Sue, a single, meddling, literally-minded, anally-retentive busy-body - Soprano

Jen, a single, aggressive, career-minded, foul-mouthed drama queen - Soprano

Kate, a married, meek-yet-funny, not-very-bright mum-of-one – Alto

---

The 'Artist in Residence' at Café Artisan – a Guitarist

(Optional in Performance Option 1 ONLY if the singers have perfect pitch AND wish to perform the opera a capella)

The waiter – Male Actor

(Required only for Performance Option 2)

---

15 Extras who play customers of the café.

(Required only for Performance Option 2)

Duration: 30 minutes (50 minutes including the Prelude)

Performance Notes

Option 1: Performance in a Café or Bar

This piece can be, and in many ways has been designed to be performed in an actual café or bar, outside of the context as detailed in the theatrical programme note. If doing this, the guitarist arrives circa 20 minutes before the singers and performs the Prelude, as per the score. The only other requirement is that the members of staff at the café/bar are primed not to answer the 'Waiter, waiter' calls, (if this is necessary)…

Additionally, if (and only if) all three singers have perfect pitch, then the piece can be performed without the guitar part (and, consequently, the Prelude).

Option 2: Performance in a theatre

The guitarist performs the prelude in the theatre, but it must be piped through a sound system so that it is heard by members of the arriving audience in all parts of the building. If this facility is not available, then an acceptable but less desirable alternative would be that the guitarist performs the prelude in the theatre foyer circa 20 minutes before the scene begins.

The scene is a small café, called Café Artisan. There are 5 tables that each seat 4 people. One of the tables is set away on its own with a sign saying 'Reserved for the Resident Artist'. There is also a small elevated stage area, ideally at the opposite end of the stage to the reserved table. There is a poster, somewhere visible to all advertising:

'Artist in Residence' Live Performance, Today!
11.30am, 1.00pm, 3.30pm, 6.00pm and 9.00pm

As members of the audience are entering the theatre, the actors playing extras are milling about creating a busy scene; arriving, leaving, sitting, ordering take-away coffee and cake etc. There is 1 waiter who is looking after these customers, and also, when he gets the chance, setting up for the advertised performance. As the final members of the audience are entering the theatre and taking their seats, there should only be three extras onstage, who are, in fact, leaving the café. In the final moments before Sue enters, the waiter sets up a chair and a music stand on the stage, and then puts out a sandwich-board sign saying:

"Celebrating Creativity! Only Live Music Here Today!"

During this version of the piece, customers gradually enter the café and fill the seats in preparation for the concert at 11.30am. When Sue and Jen leave in a blaze of vocal fireworks at the end of the score, and just as the waiter introduces the Guitarist to the stage, the three customers that left right at the beginning of the piece rush back in take the remaining seats.

The waiter is always pre-occupied with the Guitarist when the girls sing the 'Waiter, waiter' material. However, elsewhere in the piece when Sue, Jen and Kate are occupied in juicy conversation, he serves the customers coming into the café. Timing of the arrival of these customers must therefore be in exact relation to the score.

Programme Note (for Performance Option 2)

Welcome to Artisan, a café/bar with a bit of a twist.

We're dedicated to supporting the arts, and each month we appoint, by application and interview, an artist in residence. The terms of the residency are that they make coming here a part of their daily routine. They can spend as much time as they like here, but it must be a minimum of one hour a day. All refreshment for our artists is free! We commission a new work from each of our artists, the purpose of which is to capture the artist's experience of their residency here in an everyday place filled with people from all walks of life.

Another requirement is for at least a portion of the work to be created here at Artisan, although we encourage all of our artists to create the entire work here. The reasons for this are many, but mainly so that the artists can be observed working by our customers, and, potentially, fostering a wider interest in the arts and also, in a romantic way, demystifying the creative process, or indeed allowing the creative process to be an awe-inspiring spectacle. We provide a generous, reserved space for our artists to work, and this has evolved over the years to meet all sorts of requirements!

On the last day of every month, starting at 11.30am and going right through until closing, the work is exhibited, screened, performed or recited at various times and then discussed with whoever wants to be involved, and the work then goes into our collection.

The other peculiarity of Artisan is that there is only one! We move from place to place, premises to premises, and do so as soon as we feel that we've captured the spirit of the place in the works that we've commissioned, which in turn are briefed to capture the surroundings in which they are created. The community is, therefore, in a way partly responsible for shaping the work, albeit subconsciously.

One of our major concerns was that having the artist in situ would render people behaving artificially, but such concerns were unnecessary and we've found that people seem to be behaving exactly as they would normally.

Our aim is to capture what the everyday means in different places, captured in the creative imaginations of our artists and the everyday and the creative celebrated in the body of works that we are slowly collecting from all around the country.

Our artists in residence have included poets, painters, sculptors, photographers, film makers, writers and composers. This month, we've been very fortunate to have the composer-guitarist [name], who will be performing his/her new work 'Brunch' for us today.

Brunch Libretto

SUE
(on the phone)
Yeah? Okay. Hang on a sec…

SUE has a quick look around

SUE (CONT'D)
[sigh] It's just before eleven and I'm the first here as us'al
I guarantee that Kate will be here late!
She's no concept of time, or basic punctuality,
And that's a trait of hers I really hate!
Jen will be here, right on the hour,
Complaining about work: there's always something wrong!
She never really listens to anyone else, and I will…
Okay yeah, better go.
I'll see you later.

SUE hangs up the phone

SUE (CONT'D)
Waiter, waiter, please one…
Oh, when you can…
I just want a coffee, man oh man…

JEN
You'll never guess

SUE & JEN
Mwah!

JEN
Sue what…

SUE & JEN
Mwah!

JEN
Is wrong at work

SUE & JEN
Mwah!

SUE
What now?

JEN
We are merging with another company.
The rumour is there'll be redundancies;
That people will be laid off and one of them is ME!

SUE
Not this again… Je'…

JEN
I can't believe

SUE
Je'…

JEN
Those bastards

SUE
Je'…

JEN
Would do this, especially to me;

SUE
Je'…

JEN
I have always gone and done my best.

SUE
Je'…

JEN
This is so

SUE
Je'…

JEN
Fucking selfish of management,

SUE
Jen, Jen, Jen, Jen, Jen!

JEN
They don't give a damn about the rest!
What will you have, Sue?

SUE
Latte please and eggs benedict

JEN (internal monologue)
God, I don't know why I bother asking.
It's always the boring same.
She never tries anything new
And always goes for Kate's favourite.

SUE (internal monologue)
I don't know why she bothers to ask.
It's always the same.
Ever since I've been introduced to it I've been hooked.
It's also Kate's favourite

JEN
Good choice! I'll have the same.

SUE
Now Jen I have to tell you how I've felt…

JEN
Uh-huh

SUE
We've all been friends for over ten years, and

JEN
Yep, uh-huh, oh what the…

SUE
We put up with each other's faults,

JEN
What the…

SUE
But Jen you've gone too far this time,

JEN
What the fuck?

SUE
And I am here to call this to a halt!

JEN
What?

SUE
I have put up with all your narrow-mindedness,

JEN
Wha…

SUE
And at times you have been quite rude!

JEN
No!

SUE
Like the time when you baby say at Kate's house

JEN
Eh?

SUE
And walked around next morning in the nude!

JEN
Oh fuck.

SUE
Tom

SUE & JEN
(Kate's husband)

SUE
Did not complain, though…

JEN (internal monologue)
What is the dosy cow harping on about?
I was mortified.
They came back early.
It was…

SUE (internal monologue)
I'm going to get to the bottom of this.
I've suspected for years that she's been after Tom.

JEN
An accident!

SUE
I always thought it was all forgotten,

JEN
It was, it fucking is!

SUE
Until I saw you and Tom at a hotel.
You were sitting by yourselves in the bar flirting and drinking!

JEN
Oh fuck…

SUE
No sign of Kate, so all was not well.
I want to sort this before Kate arrives,
It's about the other night with you and Tom.

JEN
You've got it all wrong!
Waiter! Waiter!

SUE & JEN
WAITER!

JEN
We only had a drink together.
I promise you, we did nothing wrong.

SUE
So why did you meet in a quiet hotel if there is nothing to hide?
Don't you have any morals or truth whilst showing your darker side?

JEN
He asked me there to ask for some advice.
Their anniversary's quite soon: he wants to get her something nice…

SUE
Oh, really?

KATE
Hi,

SUE & JEN
Kate!

KATE
Is everything okay?

SUE & JEN
Er…

KATE
Are you two alright?

SUE & JEN
Er…

KATE
What on earth is there to disagree?

SUE & JEN
Um

KATE
By the looks on your faces you're arg'ing about me!

SUE Us?

JEN
No! Waiter! Waiter!

SUE & JEN
WAITER!

JEN
Ha! Don't be daft

JEN & KATE
Mwah!

JEN
Kate it's

JEN & KATE
Mwah!

JEN
About my work

SUE & KATE
Mwah!

KATE
Oh, what is it now?

SUE
Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha!

JEN
I could be out of a job!

KATE
Again? Oh no!

SUE
Ha, ha, ha!

JEN
What?

SUE
Cry wolf!

SUE & KATE
Cry wolf!

JEN
Hey? What did I say?

SUE & KATE
He, he, he, he!

JEN
WHAT?

KATE
He, he. He, he, he, he.

SUE
Well if you did it's entirely your fault!

JEN & KATE
Oh?

SUE
You should learn to shut your gob!

JEN
There is no need to be like that.

KATE
He, he. He, he. He, he, he. He, he, he, he.

JEN
I have done nothing to get the sack.

SUE
Are you sure you haven't done anything behind someone's back?

JEN
Oh, fuck off!

KATE
Okay, okay, what's going on?

SUE
Are you sure?

JEN
Fuck off!

SUE
Are you sure?

JEN
Fuck off!

SUE
Are you sure?

JEN
Fuck off!

KATE
What aren't you telling me?

SUE
Waiter!

JEN
Waiter!

KATE
Waiter!

SUE, JEN & KATE (internal monologues)
Please all we want is three lattes and three eggs Benedict!
Waiter, please?

SIE, JEN & KATE
Waiter, waiter, WAITER!

SUE, JEN & KATE (internal monologues)
My, my. Service here is rather shit.

SUE
Hey Jen,

JEN
Uh-huh

SUE
If you do get the sack,

JEN
Yes?

SUE
You could always

JEN
Yes? Yes? Yes?

SUE
Get a job

JEN
Yes? Yes?

SUE & KATE
Here as a waitress!
He, he, he, he, he, he, he, he, he, he, he, he, he, he.

JEN
Oh, fuck off!

KATE
Okay, okay, okay enough now…

SUE & JEN
Enough of what?

KATE
All this silly bickering…

SUE (internal monologue)
Oh, God, it's just a bit of fun

JEN (internal monologue)
I agree. It's hurtful.

JEN
I agree. You're both mocking me.

SUE
Oh, grow up!

JEN
I swear if you don't stop I'm going to…

SUE
What?

JEN
I'm going to… I'm going to…

SUE
What will you do?

KATE
HEY! I said enough.
Come on, it's only a job

JEN (internal monologue)
ONLY a job? Bullshit! It's my life!

SUE & KATE (internal monologues)
Ha! Bullshit! It's her life!

KATE
It's not like being a wife

SUE & JEN (internal monologues)
Oh no, here she goes again with the "mother, wife, life" speech

KATE
One day you'll know

SUE & JEN (internal monologues)
Spare us.

KATE
That nothing's

SUE & JEN (internal monologues)
Spare us, spare us please…

KATE
More important in life

SUE (internal monologue)
Change the record, for God's sake. Where's the damn waiter?! Waiter…

JEN (internal monologue)
Change the record. For God's sake, where's the fucking waiter?! Waiter…

KATE
Than being a good mother,

SUE & JEN (internal monologues)
Yawn…

KATE
And a good wife

SUE (internal monologue)
If you say so…

JEN (internal monologue)
Yeah, yeah whatever…

SUE
I agree!
But don't you also think
That having friends that you can trust completely
Is important too?

KATE
And I do!
I couldn't wish for better friends than I have in both of you!

SUE & JEN (backing vocals)
Ahh, ahh, ahh.

SUE & JEN & KATE
Aww, isn't that nice?!

JEN
I would never do anything to upset either of you two!

SUE
Are you sure?

JEN
Fuck off!

SUE
Are you sure?

JEN
Fuck off!

SUE
Are you sure?

JEN
FUCK OFF!

KATE
What the hell is going on with both of you?

SUE & JEN
…Nothing…

SUE & JEN & KATE
Hmmm…

KATE
I'm having trouble believing you…

SUE & JEN
Honestly, it doesn't matter…

KATE
Are you sure?

SUE & JEN
Uh-huh…

KATE
Are you sure?

SUE & JEN

Uh-huh…

KATE

Okay…

SUE (internal monologue)

I don't know if I should tell her
About my suspicions of Jen and Tom
They would crush her…

JEN (internal monologue)

I'm going to kill her slowly and painfully,
The suspicious bitch has got it all wrong
This time, she could ruin everything…

KATE

Girls, I need to talk to you…

SUE & JEN

Hmmm…

KATE

Girls!

SUE & JEN

Yes?

KATE

I need to talk to you.

SUE & JEN

Uh-huh

KATE

I'm frightened…

SUE & JEN

[draw breath] Sounds serious!

SUE

Is everything OK?

JEN

Are you alright?

KATE

It's Tom.

SUE & JEN
What about him?

KATE
I'm so scared. I think he's having an affair.

JEN
No, I'm sure he's not!

SUE
Oh, God, Kate…
Who do you think it could be?

JEN
Sue…

SUE
Someone from work?

JEN
Sue…

SUE
Or someone closer to home?

JEN
SUE!

SUE
ANYONE who is unfaithful to you
Is a bastard and a jerk

JEN
Oh, Sue. Stop stirring, and shut the fuck up!

SUE
What's it got to do with you?

JEN
I'm just saying…

SUE
Oh really?

KATE
Girls?

SUE & JEN
Yes?

KATE
I don't think it's anyone at work

SUE & JEN
Oh?

KATE
He wouldn't be that dumb!

SUE & JEN
Hmmm…

KATE
Would he?

SUE
Who then?

JEN
Sue!

KATE
I'm not sure.
I don't think it's anyone I know.

SUE
Who? Who?

JEN
Sue! Sue!

SUE
How can you be sure?

JEN
Sue!

KATE
Look!

SUE & JEN
What?

KATE
I found this in his pocket:

SUE & JEN
What is it?

KATE
A hotel receipt!

SUE
Oooo, that's bad…

JEN
It means nothing

SUE
It could mean everything!

JEN
Sue!

KATE
I'm frightened to confront him
I couldn't handle any deceit

SUE & JEN (backing vocals)
Oh, Kate…

KATE
Tom's changed over the last few months;

SUE
He has!

JEN
He has?

KATE
His dress sense is trendier

SUE
Really…

JEN
Really?

KATE
He gels his hair and wears cologne and…

SUE
Tom?

JEN
Tom!

SUE & JEN
What?

KATE
He's generally friendlier

SUE & JEN
I'm having trouble believing this…

KATE
He takes more time getting ready

SUE & JEN
Oh?

KATE
And conversations are all about him

SUE & JEN
No!

KATE
He's goes jogging every morning
And has joined the local gym

SUE & JEN (internal monologues)
That's good – he is a bit bulky

KATE
He's always going out,
And doesn't tell me where

SUE
Ooo, that's not good

JEN
Oh shut up Sue

KATE
Like tonight, for instance,

SUE & JEN
Tonight?

KATE
It must be an affair

SUE & JEN
Tonight…?

SUE
Yes! Yes! I agree!

JEN
No! Not necessarily!
For fuck's sake!
Why are you both hell bent on assuming the worst?

KATE
Waiter,

SUE & KATE
Waiter,

SUE & JEN & KATE
Waiter!

SUE & JEN & KATE (internal monologues)
Hmmm… What is it with the service here?

JEN
Look Kate it…
It was me that met up with Tom
At that hotel the other night

KATE
What? You? Why?

SUE
Here comes the truth

JEN
Shut the fuck up Sue,
You shit stirring cow

KATE
Please tell me it's not you
Please tell me that you… Tom… You… That you're not…

JEN
What? No!

SUE (internal monologue)
Yes, she is, they are, she is! They are!

JEN
Don't be a fucking idiot!
Besides, he's really not my type!

SUE
Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha…

JEN
Ha, ha, ha…

KATE
Hey! What's wrong with him?

SUE & JEN
Er…

KATE
Are you saying he's not hot?

SUE & JEN
Er… Kate?

KATE
What? Oh, right, yes.
So what were you doing in a hotel with my husband?

SUE (internal monologue)
Oh, here it comes, oh, here it comes!
I can hardly wait!

JEN (internal monologue)
I really don't want to tell her
But I have no choice

JEN

He was telling me about a surprise he's got in mind
For your anniversary.

SUE (internal monologue)

It can't be…

KATE

Oh?

JEN

He mentioned taking you away

KATE

Eh? Tom?

JEN

And asked if I would baby sit

KATE

Oh, really? How exciting!

SUE

Oh, Jen, look… Jen. Please…

JEN

Now, after being FORCED to tell you all of this
I'm feeling kind of shit.

SUE

Oh, Jen, look…

JEN

Oh, fuck off, Sue!

KATE

Hey! Enough!

SUE & JEN

…Sorry…

KATE

So, where did he say he'd take me?

JEN

Er…

KATE
Is it a hot, romantic trip…?

JEN
Er…

KATE
It is London?

JEN
Uh-uh

KATE
Paris?

JEN
Uh-uh

KATE
Madeira?

JEN
Uh-uh

KATE
Grenada?

JEN
Uh-uh

KATE
Cancun?

JEN
Uh-uh

KATE
Cuba?

JEN
Uh-uh

KATE
New York?

JEN
Uh-uh

KATE
Rotterdam?

JEN
What the fuck?

KATE
ROME?

JEN
Er…

KATE
God, anywhere would be great!

JEN
Uh-huh…
Where

SUE
Jen?

JEN
Did Rotterdam

SUE
Jen?

JEN
Come from?

KATE
Hey!

SUE
Jen?

KATE
What's wrong with

SUE
Jen?

KATE
Rotterdam?

SUE & JEN
What the fuck?

SUE
JEN!

JEN
What?

SUE
[frustrated exhale] Did he say where?

JEN
Hmmm… Yes…

SUE & KATE
Yes?

JEN
What?

SUE & KATE
Tell us for fuck's sake!

JEN
[frustrated exhale] He mentioned…

SUE & KATE
Yes? Yes? Yes? Yes? Yes?

JEN
He mentioned…

SUE & KATE
Yes? Yes? Yes…?

JEN
He mentioned…

SUE & KATE
Yes? Yes?

JEN
SWANSEA!

SUE (joined first by JEN, then later KATE)
He, he, he, he, he, he, he, he, he, he, he, he, he, he, he, he, he…

SUE & JEN laughter continues

KATE
Oh, well…
Swansea could be fine…

SUE & JEN (internal monologues)
What a prick!
SUE & JEN
If you say so…

JEN
Well, it's this weekend,
Unless he's forgotten

SUE
Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha!

JEN
So you'll have to look surprised

KATE
Oh? I will be
Because our anniversary
Is in fucking three months time!

SUE & JEN (backing vocals)
Ahh… Ahh… Ahh…

SUE & JEN
ARGH!

SUE & JEN & KATE (internal monologues)
He, he, he, he, he
Oh, Oh, Oh…
Well that about sums it up, don't you see?
That men are a pain in the arse!
And whenever they organise anything
It turns out to be an absolute fucking farce!

SUE & JEN & KATE
Waiter, Waiter, WAITER!
Bloody hell!
Service here is utter gash!
[Frustrated sigh]

Hmmm…

SUE & KATE
[Jen's Mobile Phone Ringtone]

JEN
Oh fuck! Where the fuck is my phone?
WHAT?

SUE & KATE
Put it on silent! It's brunch time!

JEN
(on the phone)
Shhh!
What? No, tonight's no good… OK. Gotta go! Gotta… Got'… Bye!

JEN hangs up the phone

SUE & KATE
Who was that?

JEN
No one. Just… Someone from work.

SUE & KATE
Hmmm…

JEN & KATE
[Sue's Mobile Phone Ringtone]

SUE
Ooops, sorry! Two secs…
(on the phone)
Hello?

KATE
So rude…

SUE

(on the phone)

Oh, Hi! How are you? Listen I'm a bit busy – can I call you back? Tonight?

JEN & KATE

A date?

SUE

(on the phone)

I can't, I'm sorry. Another time? Definitely!

JEN & KATE

Who do you think it could be?

SUE

(on the phone)

Oh? Ooo… Ooo… Mmm… Mmm… Yes! OK.

JEN & KATE

Dunno!

SUE

(on the phone)

See ya!

JEN & KATE

Who was that?

SUE hangs up the phone

SUE

Er, no one… Just a… friend…

JEN & KATE

Hmmm…

SUE & JEN

[Kate's Mobile Phone Ringtone]

KATE

Withheld number…

(on the phone)

Hello? Oh, hi honey. Uh-huh? Really? Really? Really? Oh, great! I'll cook us something nice!

SUE & JEN

Kate cooks?

KATE
(on the phone)
Okay. Honey, gotta go - I'm with Sue and Jen having Brunch right now. Honey? Are you Okay? It sounds like you're choking?

SUE & JEN
Choking?

KATE
(on the phone)
Really? Oh, okay… Be careful!

SUE & JEN
Choking?

KATE
(on the phone)
I'll see you later!

SUE & JEN
Choking?

KATE
(on the phone)
I love you too…

SUE & JEN
Why would he be choking?

KATE hangs up the phone

(to KATE)
Was that…?

KATE
That was Tom. He's cancelled his thing tonight to be with me!

SUE & JEN
Tom…

KATE
I'm so lucky…

SUE & JEN (internal monologues)
Er… Yes you are, if you say so… Hmmm…

KATE
How could I have ever suspected an affair…?

SUE & JEN
Dunno… It seems so very unlikely now, doesn't it? Hmmm…

KATE
Look, I can't wait for this waiter anymore. I've got shopping to do for later! M&S ready meals…

SUE & JEN
Aha!

KATE
And maybe while I'm there

SUE & JEN
She doesn't cook!

KATE
Something naughty!

SUE & JEN
Ooo… Lucky him…

KATE
Bye girls!

SUE & JEN
Bye Kate.

[A pause as she leaves]

SUE & JEN
You! What?

[Pause]

Waiter, waiter, WAITER.
Oh, fuck this!

SUE and JEN both make for the door

SUE
I knew!

JEN
Knew? Oh, fuck off Sue…

SUE
I swear if you don't say it I'm going to…

JEN
What?

SUE
I'm going to…

JEN
What will you do…?

SUE
I'm going to…

SUE & JEN
Oh, just… FUCK OFF!

SUE exits, immediately followed by JEN who slams the door

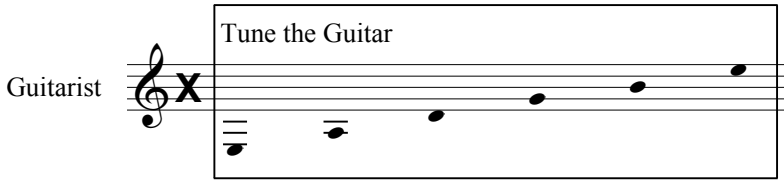

Brunch

An Opera in One Scene with Prelude

Max Charles Davies

Prelude (20 minutes)

- The Prelude is not part of the 'observed opera', but rather a piece of necessary background music that takes place before.
- If being performed in a café or bar, the guitarist simply arrives c. 20 minutes before the start of the scene and performs the Prelude.
- If being performed in a theatre, the guitarist performs the Prelude in the theatre, but it must be piped through a sound system so that it is heard by members of the arriving audience in all parts of the building. If this facility is not available, then an acceptable but less desirable alternative would be that the guitarist performs the prelude in the theatre foyer c. 20 minutes before the scene begins.

- Once tuned, play from bar 17 to 842 of the scene, omitting any dramatic directions (such as 'scribble' or 'take a sip of coffee') and lengthy pauses.
- If in a café or bar, after bar 842, retune the guitar, and then go to the toilet or to the bar to order a drink, allow Sue to start, then sit down by bar 8 to perform the scene.
- If in a theatre, the prelude should last until the entire audience is seated in the theatre. After bar 842, retune, then go to the toilet (this should be part of the scene set-up) and re-emerge in time to be seated by bar 8. If the prelude has been performed in the foyer, then the guitarist should enter the stage as the final members of the audience are taking their seats, and, after setting up at his/her table (guitar, pad and pencil out) head straight for the toilet, re-emerging in time to be seated by bar 8.

Scene

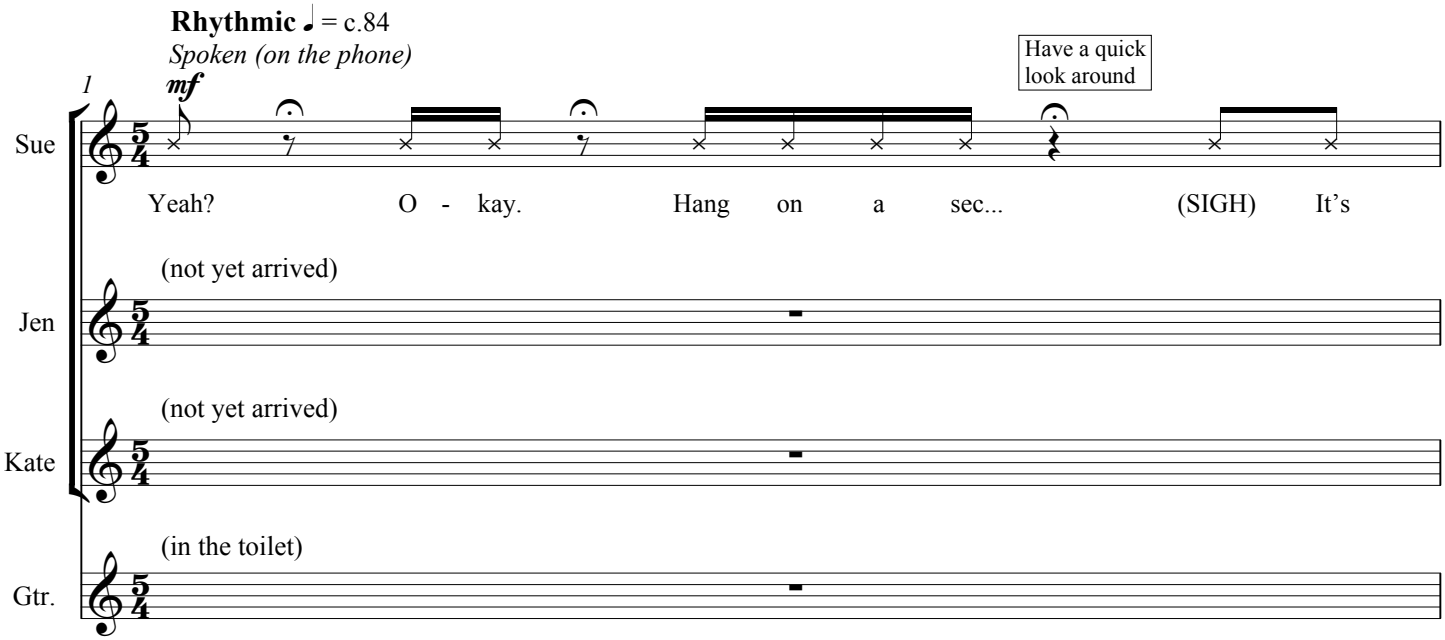

- If performed in a café or bar, Sue simply arrives, talking on the phone as per the score, and the guitarist takes his/her seat by bar 8.

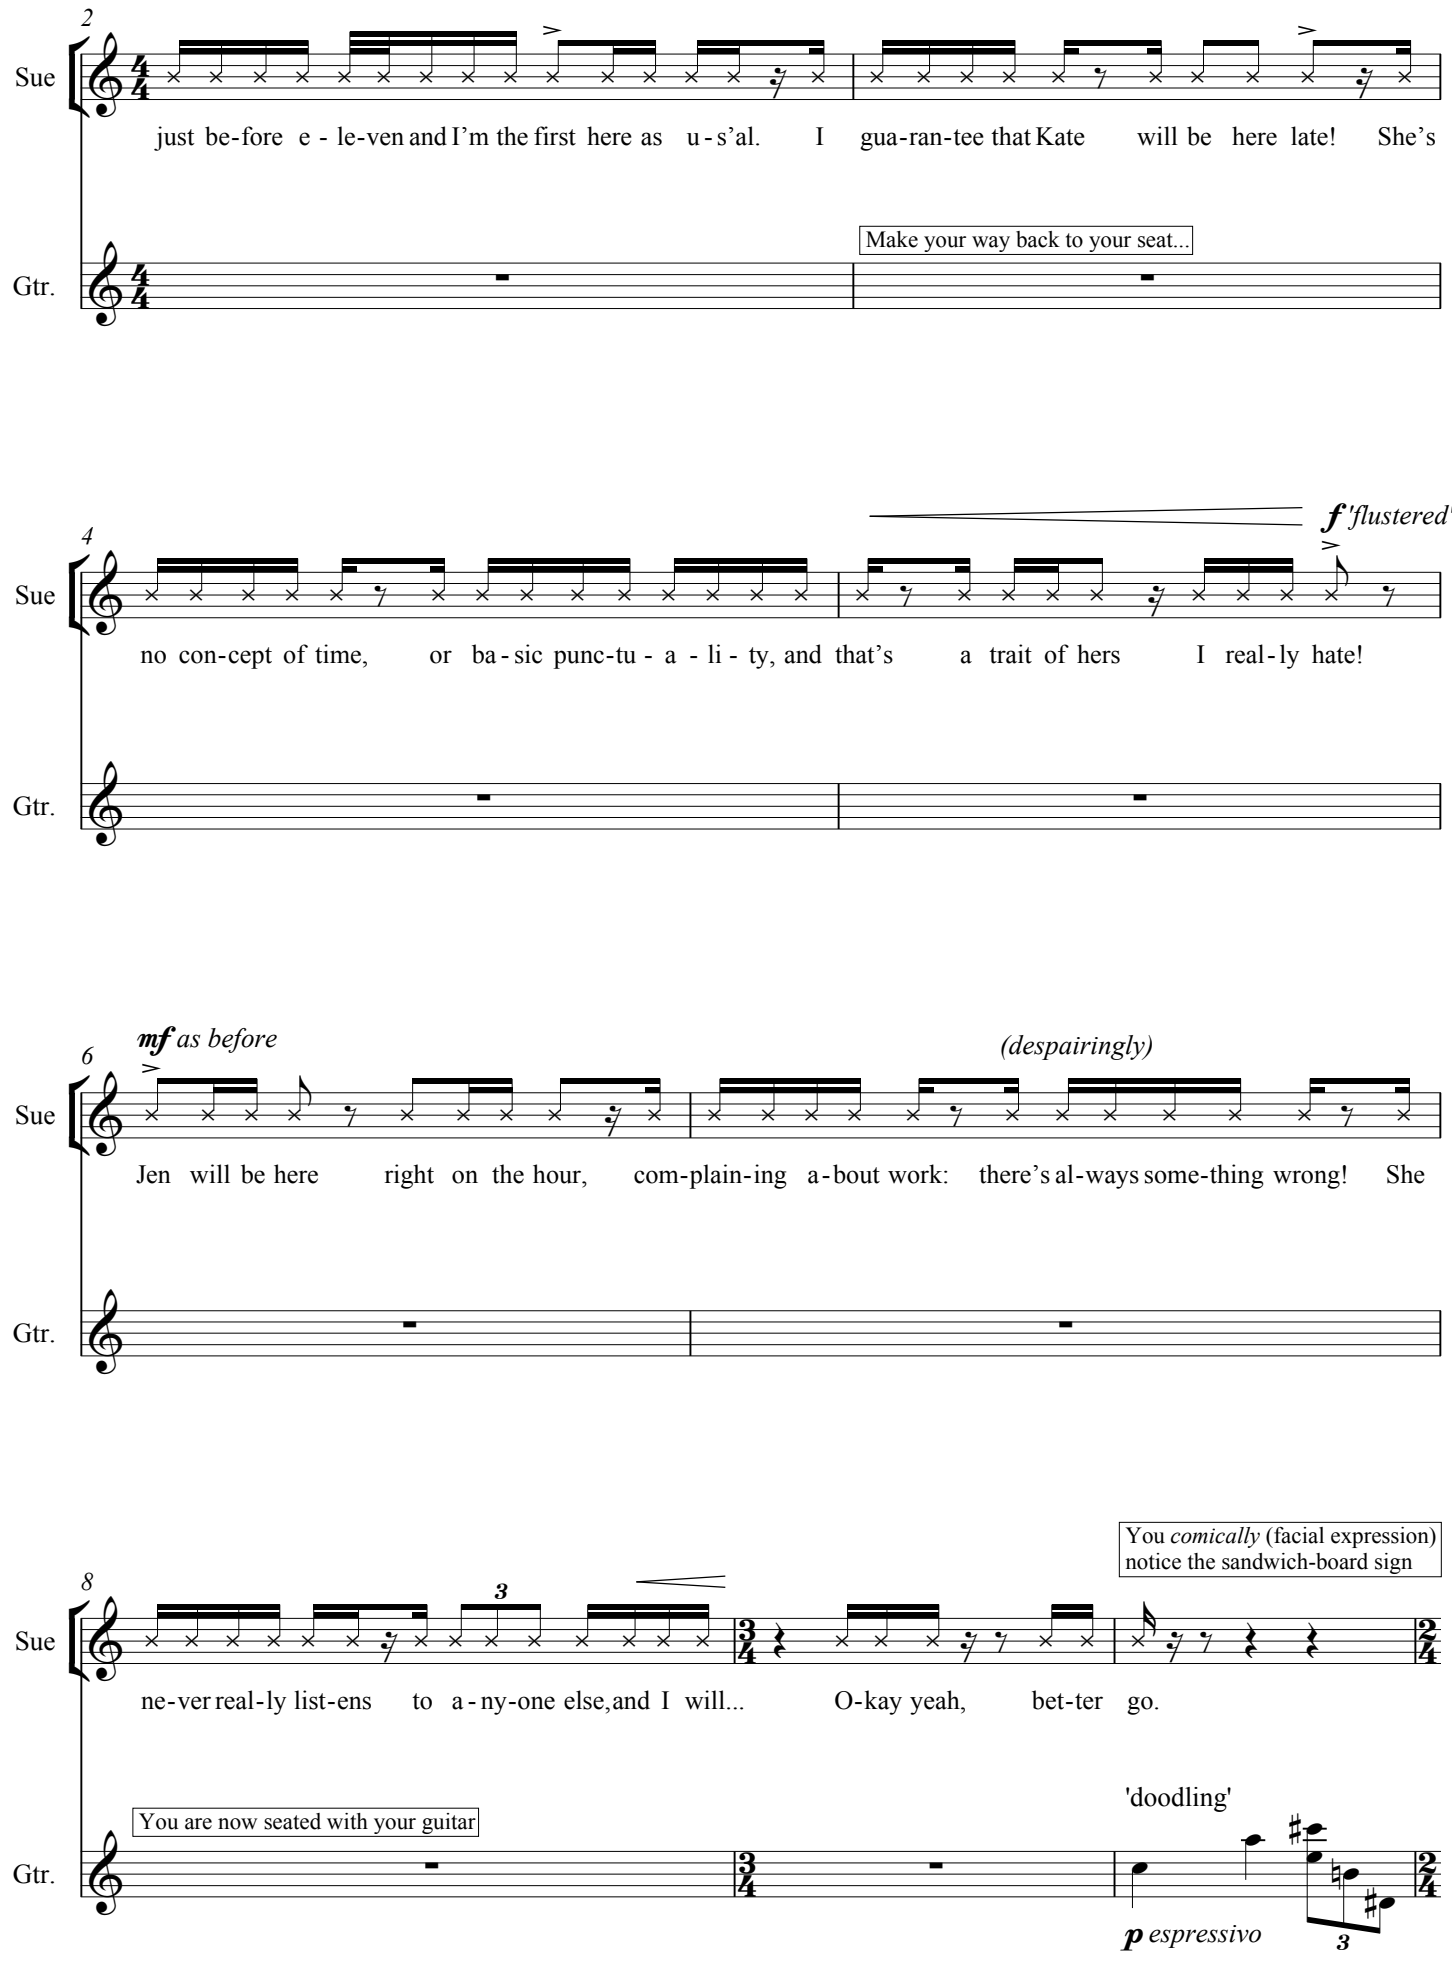

- If performed in a theatre, the scene is a small café, called Café Artisan. There are 5 tables that each seat 4 people. One of the tables is set away on its own with a sign saying 'Reserved for the Resident Artist'. There is also a small elevated stage area, ideally at the opposite end of the stage to the reserved table. There is a poster, somewhere visible to all advertising the 'Artist in Residence' Live Performance, Today! 11.30am, 1.00pm, 3.30pm, 6.00pm and 9.00pm

As members of the audience are entering the theatre, the actors playing extras are milling about creating a busy scene; arriving, leaving, sitting, ordering take-away coffee and cake etc. There is 1 waiter who is looking after these customers, and also, when he gets the chance, setting up for the advertised performance. As the final members of the audience are entering the theatre and taking their seats, there should only be three extras onstage, who are, in fact, leaving the café. In the final moments before Sue enters, the waiter sets up a chair and a music stand on the stage, and then puts out a sandwich-board sign saying: "Celebrating Creativity - Only Live Music Here Today!"

During this version of the piece, customers gradually enter the café and fill the seats in preparation for the concert at 11.30am. When Sue and Jen leave in a blaze of vocal fireworks at the end of the score, and just as the waiter introduces the Guitarist to the stage, the three customers that left right at the beginning of the piece rush back in take the remaining seats.

The waiter is always pre-occupied with the Guitarist when the girls sing the 'Waiter, waiter' material. However, elsewhere in the piece when Sue, Jen and Kate are occupied in juicy conversation, he serves the customers coming into the café. Timing of the arrival of these customers must therefore be in exact relation to the score.

For Electric Bass Guitar

Duration: c. 13 minutes

When I was approached by a third year student to write a piece for solo electric bass guitar for his final recital, I was initially excited. I had, myself, played the bass guitar in my youth in all manner of dire rock band efforts and musical theatre productions of questionable quality. On gently questioning him further about why he wanted a new piece, I was informed that there had been resistance from the university to allow a recital on electric bass guitar, with some question over whether it was actually a 'recital' instrument. I suspect this was the case because of the small size of available repertoire. It was this very fact that stimulated my idea for the piece: to play with the idea of identity, and in an unusual deviation from my 'norm,' the title was the first thing to come: iD.

I wanted to add a quasi-theatrical element to this piece. I imagined a scenario where a bassist in a pit band would begin to play yet another generic bass line in a musical theatre song, become quickly bored, and then miraculously removed from time and start to improvise with the material, making it more interesting, and taking it to technical extremes before rejoining the imaginary ongoing song. When I began to compile material, I decided that I wanted to explore both the material and the bass from every expressive angle. This struck a chord with Freud's 'Id', i.e. the unorganised part of our personalities that contains basic drives. This struck me as a fitting destination for the piece. The bassist explores basic ways of playing the instrument, and by the end they have a total crisis of identity (in addition to the first identity crisis between being a member of an ensemble or a soloist), and all organisation of the material and associated techniques breaks down.

The core material for this piece is part of a bass line from a musical theatre song I composed in 2002, and a piece of improvised music that forms the start of the work. Broadly speaking, the structure of the piece is that of my original musical theatre song, although this is not apparent. This original bass line drifts in and out of focus, but for the majority of the piece is heavily treated and expanded upon, creating the impression of it being improvised with.

Compositional treatment of the material aside, the 'techniques' that I have incorporated in the piece are: the bass being the provider of a solid bass line, as if playing with an ensemble; of rhythmic, funky slap; of soloistic, lyrically expressive and ornamented melody; of dancing harmonics; and dark, brooding drama through use of muddy dissonance.

Doodles

Four pieces for Brass Quintet

Ensemble:
2 Trumpets in B♭
Horn in F
Trombone
Tuba

Duration: c. 12 minutes

1. Obscuring, black lunar, elliptical, clouds

2. Sea Sick

3. Flowers. Grow. Noodles. Mating Slugs.

4. Um(,)cha(-cha)

I set myself the challenge of giving myself one day in which to write each of these pieces. Some took a little longer than this, but nevertheless, my intended strategy was that these short pieces, each written at different times during a four year period, would each respond to an image of my own choosing, and be written quickly. Hence the title: Doodles.

Sea Sick was the first to be written. I used clusters that open out to more consonant sounds and close back again to depict the various stages of feeling ill at sea; from feeling very nauseous to feeling not-so-bad and then back to feeling utterly terrible whilst being thrown around on the turbulent seas.

The next to be penned was Obscuring, black lunar, elliptical, clouds. This was inspired by the view of the moon from the balcony of a previous abode as it moved through the sky on an elliptical-like curve whilst clouds continually moved in front of it, momentarily obscuring its view. The piece was entirely sketched at the piano. The 'orbit' is an improvised tune that spans the whole of the piece. I then placed note collections alongside this, and turned these into clouds of changing colours when orchestrating it.

Following this was Flowers. Grow. Noodles. Mating Slugs. An admittedly strange title, but it is an amalgamation of images, and captures the music in a fitting way. In terms of its composition, this took the least time to sketch. Its material is a set of ten chords improvised at the piano. There are two chords per section. Each section 'grows' in density, with 'offshoots' springing out of the texture to contribute to an evermore entangled sound world.

In contrast to this, Um(,)cha(-cha) is the shortest piece and took the longest time to write. The initial inspiration was someone not made for dancing learning to waltz for the first time. Roughly twenty seconds of entirely improvised music was written out and then was not returned to for two years. I was able after this time to apply a technique that I had been developing to the 'unpacked' material, formalise the shape of the piece, and complete it quickly. A dramatic 'play-off' is alluded to here between the muted trio of trumpets and trombone and the un-muted duet of horn and tuba.

Max Charles Davies

Workplace Diary

For String Quintet

Ensemble:
2 Violins
Viola
2 Violoncelli

Duration: c. 18 minutes

1. Routine Arrival Routine

2. Working Monkeys Working

Workplace Diary is a musical caricature of my place of work. In it I translate actions into music; translate indigenous sounds that I experience onto the string quintet; gently mock the characteristics of some of my colleagues (in fondness and friendship); and represent the changing emotional states of everyone whom I have 'included' in the piece.

Physical actions that I have represented are languid walking, climbing stairs, opening and closing doors and turning things on, as well as the more prescriptive tasks that my own job entails: sorting out piles of paper, stapling and hole punching, scanning pages into the computer, and typing, for example. Some of the indigenous sounds that I have imitated are: a computer starting up, a kettle boiling, and the phone ringing.

The characters I have portrayed, through use of leitmotifs, include someone who blows up at the slightest provocation, such as the phone ringing, only for a calm façade to reappear when the requirement to be professional returns; an incessantly unhappy person who mostly groans, an excessively happy and excitable person, a person who struggles with complex tasks and conversations, and a person who's speech is constantly interjected with the phrase "this, that and the other."

I've also attempted to be true to the spatial layout of the place. Being in a fixed position for much of the day, sounds to me are in a constant state of flux. Ways in which their quality changes are: as doors open and close, as people move closer or further away, as people change from normal conversation to gossipy whispering, to name but a few. An example of how I attempt to articulate this in music is by employing techniques such as sul ponticello to create a muffled sound, as if it were happening in a different room.

To all at LCS who unknowingly contributed to this piece...
